FOREWORD

The growth of drug abuse treatment programs throughout the country is the result of a successful, cooperative effort among Federal, State, and local agencies engaged in providing treatment services. This rapid expansion of treatment capacity came with the national recognition that treatment services must be balanced with drug enforcement efforts to provide meaningful programs to control the drug abuse problem.

The extent of this increase can be seen in the growth of Federal programs which increased from 36 programs in 1971 to 376 programs in 1975. These programs, combined with the resources from State, local, and private organizations, support over 3,800 treatment service points.

This National Directory is an important resource for individuals who seek treatment and referral agencies and require information on the location and availability of different types of drug abuse programs and services. We hope it will also promote communication in the drug abuse field by facilitating the exchange of experiences, ideas, and methods among treatment personnel

PREFACE

The National Directory of Drug Abuse Treatment Programs is a compilation of approximately 3,800 Federal, State, local, and privately funded agencies responsible for the administration or provision of drug abuse treatment services throughout the United States and its territories. The descriptive information, primarily consisting of the location and services of each program, was derived from the 1975 National Drug Abuse Treatment Utilization Survey. This survey was conducted by the National Institute on Drug Abuse to assess treatment capacity and clients in treatment as of June 30, 1975.

The Directory was prepared to serve as a resource tool for program managers, treatment personnel, clients, and other persons interested in the location and activities of treatment service units and their administrative agencies. Programs were included if they were identified as a therapeutic community, halfway house, or free clinic, and if they were engaged in one or more of the following activities: administrative services, treatment and rehabilitation programs, central intake facilities, crisis intervention programs, and other support services such as counseling. Hotlines, crisis centers, and programs engaged in other information, education, counseling, or prevention activities were included only if they were also providing a treatment/rehabilitation service.

The publication is organized alphabetically by State, and the entries are alphabetized by city and then by program name within the city. Each entry consists of identifying information including program name, address, telephone number, director's name, and a description of the program's activities. Additionally, a majority of the treatment service entries include information on the services (modalities) offered and the environment in which they are provided.

The Directory will be updated following each Utilization Survey. We hope you will find it a useful resource. Please send your comments to us.
